DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Applicant's election with traverse of invention I in the reply filed on 9/6/07 is acknowledged. The traversal is on the ground(s) that there is no separable special technical feature. This is not found persuasive because as the examiner has pointed out there is reason to separate for the listed reasons. Also it appears that the applicant has argued restriction practice and not 371 practice, the examiner does not need to specify the detailed reasoning in the 371 case.

The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1,2,6,60,61, and 62 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by US 3458188 to Infante (hereinafter called 188).

- a. Re claim 1, 188 discloses a spreader bar 10, and arm 64, with hook 62. The spreader bar also meets the functional language of being "for use with a conveyance device" because it may be used to hold a kite. Also it is adapted to be hooked to a control element at the hook 62.
- b. Re claim 2, 188 discloses an arm 64 which has a hole through it which is the tether connector integral to the hook, because the arm and hook are integrated together.
- c. Re claim 6, 188 discloses a snap hook at number 62.
- d. Re claim 60, 188 discloses that the hook is rotatably mounted on the arm as seen in figure 1 at least.
- e. Re claim 61, 188 discloses inherently that the device may be used with a wind powered device, because this is functional.
- f. Re claim 62, 188 discloses inherently that the device may be used with a self-propelled device, because this is functional.
- g. Re claim 1, 188 discloses a spreader bar 10, and arm 52, with hook 62 (at the opposite end of the arm from the spreader bar). The spreader bar also meets the functional language of being "for use with a conveyance device" because it may be used to hold a kite. Also it is adapted to be hooked to a control element at the hook 62.
- h. Re claim 2, 188 discloses an arm 52 which has a hole through it 58 which is the tether connector integral to the hook, because the arm and hook are integrated together.

- i. Re claim 4, 188 discloses that there is a quick release 62 (by the spreader bar 10) which enables the arm to be released from the spreader bar.
 - j. Re claim 6, 188 discloses a snap hook at number 62.
 - k. Re claim 60, 188 discloses that the hook is rotatably mounted on the arm as seen in figure 1 at least.
 - l. Re claim 61, 188 discloses inherently that the device may be used with a wind powered device, because this is functional.
 - m. Re claim 62, 188 discloses inherently that the device may be used with a self-propelled device, because this is functional.
 - n. Re claim 63, 188 discloses that the hook may be released from the arm by the quick release which is opening of the hook member 62 from the end of the arm opposite the spreader bar.
4. Claims 1,60,61, and 62 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being clearly anticipated by US 6682018 to Sinclair (hereinafter called 018).
- o. Re claim 1, 018 discloses a spreader bar 6, with an arm (no numbers in figure 3, but the large vertical member between the two sections of 4), and a hook 15. The spreader bar also meets the functional language of being "for use with a conveyance device" because it may be used to hold a kite. Also it is adapted to be hooked to a control element at the hook 15.
 - p. Re claim 60, 018 discloses that the hook is rotatably mounted as seen in the description of figure 3 in column 3 of the patent. The swivel mechanisms are numbered as 4.

- q. Re claim 61, 018 discloses inherently that the device may be used with a wind powered device, because this is functional.
 - r. Re claim 62, 018 discloses inherently that the device may be used with a self-propelled device, because this is functional.
5. Claims 1,2,61, and 62 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being clearly anticipated by US 2004/0195459 to Pouchkarev (hereinafter called 459).
- s. Re claim 1, 459 discloses a spreader bar 8, an arm (on the hook, the long members), and a hook (hook around part 30). The spreader bar also meets the functional language of being "for use with a conveyance device" because it may be used to hold a kite. Also it is adapted to be hooked to a control element at the hook.
 - t. Re claim 2, 459 discloses a tether connector in that a tether 7 is attached to the hook via the members 8. This is integrated with the hook.
 - u. Re claim 61, 459 discloses inherently that the device may be used with a wind powered device, because this is functional.
 - v. Re claim 62, 459 discloses inherently that the device may be used with a self-propelled device, because this is functional.

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claims 3 and 5 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
